Nate Stanley (6-4, 235) was chosen in the seventh round (244th overall) by the Vikings in the 2020 NFL Draft. A product of Iowa, Stanley started 39 games (27-12) over the previous three seasons, which ranked fourth nationally among quarterbacks. He helped the Hawkeyes average more than 28 points per game. He ranks in the top three in multiple categories in the Hawkeyes' record book, including second in career touchdown passes (68), second in career passing yards (8,302) and second in career pass attempts and completions (673 and 1,155). In 2019, Stanley completed 59.4 percent of his passes for 2,951 yards and threw 16 touchdowns. Stanley, a native of Menomonie, Wisconsin, was an All-Big Ten Honorable Mention by the conference's coaches and won the Big Ten Conference Sportsmanship Award in 2019.
